The Department of Middle Eastern Studies / Political Science announces the call for articles for the special issue for the 40th anniversary of the Islamic Revolution in Iran:

"Iran’s Forty Years of Revolution: Surviving the Dilution and Constructing Illusion"

To be published on February 2019.

The call is open also for the 3rd volume of the journal to be published Oct-Nov-2018.
The Journal is interdisciplinary in nature and aims to promote studies related to geopolitical issues in the region of the Middle East and Central Asia. We invite submission of original articles from researchers across disciplines that include the Middle East, Political Science, International Relations, Communication & Media, Sociology and Law. We welcome both theoretical and case study papers that engage with the history and contemporary political, social, economic, and cultural aspects of Middle Eastern and Central Asia countries. The criteria for publication are relevance to the journal's aims and scope, scientific innovation and high quality. All submissions are peer-reviewed anonymously by two referees.

The journal will simultaneously be published online and in print.
\ The first deadline for submissions for the 3rd volume is June 30st, 2018.
\ The first deadline for submissions for the special issue is September 1st, 2018.

For the author guidelines see:
goo.gl/c8gQHD

Please direct submissions and any questions to the editors:
https://mc04.manuscriptcentral.com/aup-jimes